

TALKING & TELLING

Free Networking Event for OHNI Members in Connacht

This free event is designed for OHNI members to meet in an informal setting to discuss ideas, talk about past or current projects, and get to know other people in the region involved in oral history. It is also an opportunity to share your views on how OHNI can develop in the months and years to come.

The Museum of Country Life will offer OHNI members who attend two optional extras on the day: a special guided tour of the house (at 10:15am) and a workshop on making harvest knots (at 2:30pm). Refreshments will be available in the museum café.

The Oral History Network of Ireland brings together oral history practitioners for the support and promotion of the discipline of oral history in Ireland. Our aims include offering advice and support; encouraging new and existing projects to allow oral historians to communicate on a national level; sharing experiences and ideas and discussing standards in practice and relevant technologies.
